Our Mission

The International Community Foundation seeks to increase charitable giving and volunteerism across U.S. borders to benefit overseas communities and nonprofit organizations.

Who We Are

Established in 1990, the International Community Foundation has a proven track record in strategic, international grantmaking. To further its mission, the International Community Foundation spearheads coalitions for a variety of important causes and also represents over 1,000 donors with diverse international interests. To maximize the social impact of our work, the majority of the International Community Foundation’s charitable giving is focused on assisting registered public charities throughout Mexico and Central America.

What We Do

The International Community Foundation is more than a mechanism for giving. The Foundation works as a partner and strategic advisor for donors, helping to identify where donations can have the greatest impact and guiding donors through each complex step involved in international philanthropy. The International Community Foundation makes the process easy for donors, shouldering the responsibility of implementing the required due diligence to ensure that grants are distributed effectively and have maximum impact. This protects both donor and grantee by observing strict compliance with all U.S. laws and regulations governing international charitable giving.
It has been over 20 years since the International Community Foundation (ICF) was founded on the vision of promoting philanthropy and grantmaking in underserved communities in the Americas and Asia. During this time, over $33 million in grants has been made to charities in the communities that we serve internationally.

During the past decade, the International Community Foundation had sought to stay true to its founders’ original vision of serving as a philanthropic connector for both the Americas and Asia. However, the need for expanded grant compliance and oversight prompted the foundation’s Board to refocus our grantmaking priorities on two key geographic priorities: Mexico and Central America.

In the past fiscal year, 121 grants totaling almost $5.8 million were made to 90 nonprofits, representing an increase of 5% over the prior fiscal year. Through this funding, a wide range of projects and initiatives was supported in the areas of education, the environment, health & human services, community development and arts & culture.

Beyond its grantmaking in the San Diego-Tijuana border region, the Foundation published a study highlighting cross-border challenges and opportunities in tuberculosis. With financial support from Qualcomm’s Wireless Reach Initiative, the Foundation also helped forge an innovative, cross-border, public-private partnership that has led to the development of a wireless diabetes management solution for underserved patients in Tijuana.

Given that over 50% of the International Community Foundation’s current donors are retirees or second homebuyers in Mexico, the Foundation has sought to better understand how the ongoing economic recession has impacted this unique subpopulation. To learn more, the International Community Foundation embarked on a year-long effort to study U.S. retirement trends in Mexican coastal communities, which resulted in four research reports published since March.

In the coming decade, it is our hope that the International Community Foundation can inspire more U.S. donors to expand their level of giving to Mexico and Central America. Increased giving will empower and enable more worthy nonprofits to proactively respond to growing challenges and needs using community-based solutions that government is unable to provide alone.

Thank you for your steadfast support of the International Community Foundation over the past two decades. It is thanks to your generosity that our work is possible.

Sincerely,

Cheryl Hammond

Environment

Los Laureles Canyon, Tijuana, BC, Mexico

With a population of 65,000 residents, many in illegal settlements without access to sewer and water pipes, Los Laureles Canyon was sending trash, sediment and sewage directly into the protected wetlands and beaches of the Tijuana River Estuary. When approached by the California Coastal Conservancy, the International Community Foundation agreed to oversee and implement the first steps toward improving local residents’ quality of life and health, as well as the estuary’s health. After three years, the International Community Foundation and its partners completed a diagnostic of the canyon and an education and outreach program that has resulted in a small grants program for local projects, a formal land-use plan for the canyon, residential water connections and green space for students and families to play.

Isla Espíritu Santo, La Paz, BCS, Mexico

When the Mexican government and the philanthropic community announced that the island would become a protected area, the International Community Foundation took the idea one step further. With a 1:1 challenge grant from the United Nations Foundation, the International Community Foundation raised $250,000 for the first conservation management program on the island. Not only did this funding provide much-needed operational support in the early years of the reserve, but it led to the application for the declaration of all 244 islands of the Gulf of California as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Red Frog Beach, Bastimentos Island, Panama

After identifying the need to better enforce environmental laws in Panama, the International Community Foundation worked with local advisors to launch the Center for Environmental Advocacy (CIAM). Almost immediately, CIAM was approached by local residents of Bastimentos Island to challenge an oversized tourism complex on Red Frog Beach. This challenge went all the way to the Supreme Court, where CIAM won, overturning the environmental impact assessment approval for the first time in Panama’s history. With continued technical and financial support from the International Community Foundation, CIAM is protecting mangroves, turtle nesting sites, rare bird habitat and large expanses of tropical forest. The Red Frog tourism complex has still not been approved.

Laguna San Ignacio Conservation Alliance, San Ignacio Lagoon, BCS, Mexico

In an effort to protect and conserve the breeding grounds of the California grey whale, in 2003 the International Community Foundation forged a cross-border partnership with Pronatura Noroeste Mar de Cortes, A.C, Wildcoast/Costa Salvaje and the Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC) to establish the Laguna San Ignacio Conservation Alliance. Thanks to the support of the Foundation’s collective donors and the collaborative work of our program partners, the Alliance has secured conservation easements on more than 140,000 acres of land around the lagoon and has helped spur the protection of additional 300,000 acres of Federally owned land. The Foundation continues to support the Alliance’s efforts serving as the fiscal steward for endowment funds to promote the long-term stewardship of the lagoon as well as an ongoing protection of communal lands from Ejido Luis Echevarría Alvarez through Maijánuí, A.C.

Health

Dulce Wireless Initiative, Tijuana, BC, Mexico

With funding from Qualcomm’s Wireless Reach Program, the International Community Foundation is managing a 3G mobile medicine initiative, which involves six project partner organizations from Mexico and the U.S. The ultimate goal of Dulce Wireless-Tijuana is to improve diabetes patients’ health and lifestyle by utilizing 3G wireless technology to more effectively monitor and treat diabetes in otherwise hard to reach communities of Tijuana.

East Cape Community Urgent Care Clinic, Los Barriles, BCS, Mexico

When Char Wenger moved to a remote area of Baja California Sur, she decided that the residents deserved primary health care. With her training as a registered nurse, Char began volunteering with a local doctor and soon was raising money for medical treatments for local families. She then met the International Community Foundation and, following a shark bite incident with two U.S. sport fishermen, Char established a “friends of” fund at the International Community Foundation with a $4,000 contribution. In 2006, Char partnered with a Los Cabos-based clinic service and secured doctors, nurses, supplies and equipment for Los Barriles. Her “friends of” fund is now used for emergency care and a new dental clinic.

Indonesian Red Cross, Jakarta, Indonesia

In 2004, the South Asian tsunami left 1.5 million homeless; countless individuals lost family members as a result of one of the deadliest disasters in modern history. In response, the International Community Foundation again partnered with the United Nations Foundation and 13 U.S. community foundations to provide immediate assistance for response, recovery and reconstruction in the tsunami-affected regions of Indonesia, Sri Lanka and North Africa. Ultimately raising almost $1 million, the International Community Foundation’s largest grantee was the Indonesian Red Cross, the lead response organization in Banda Aceh. Their work on water and sanitation, as well as their health response programs, was supported by Sempra Energy’s donor-advised fund at the International Community Foundation. The International Community Foundation also supported the United Nations’ housing reconstruction and disease prevention efforts in partnership with the UN Foundation.

Education

Universidad IberoAmericana, Tijuana, BC, Mexico

Located on the hilltop overlooking Playas de Tijuana, the IberoAmericana University struggled with fundraising for its programs and buildings. In 2003, the International Community Foundation responded with $87,000 from multiple donors for the Loyola Library – the first major public library in Tijuana. Since that time, our partnership has grown to include a bookmobile that promotes reading and the use of libraries. The bookmobile visits local schools, orphanages and hospitals. The International Community Foundation estimates that the program reaches 3,000 students each semester and is the only program of its kind in Tijuana.

Fundación Ayuda Niños La Paz, La Paz, BCS, Mexico

A leader in the local community, FANLAP has improved the lives of countless students and families living on the outskirts of La Paz. FANLAP provides a healthy breakfast and lunch program, with meals cooked by local women from the neighborhood. FANLAP selects up to 200 scholarship students each year, helping them with books, uniforms, backpacks and other needs, including counseling from a trained social worker. Not only is FANLAP a leader in La Paz, but it is also a leader in Mexico’s philanthropic community. It was among the first to establish a “friends of” fund at the International Community Foundation to reach U.S.-based donors, establish an institutional endowment at the Foundation, form a Patronato to receive local Mexican donations and receive the highest nonprofit certification available from the Mexican government. FANLAP’s participation in the International Community Foundation-sponsored Education Forum led to their new strategic planning process and institutional learning from other groups in Mexico.

Project Amigo, Colima, Mexico

The International Community Foundation led a research process and site tour on behalf of Organics Unlimited, which sought to dedicate a portion of its organic fruit production to local community groups. The International Community Foundation identified Project Amigo as a potential grantee in 2006 and, since then, the partnership has flourished. To date, Organics Unlimited has contributed over $300,000 through its donor-advised fund to homework clubs, educational scholarships, university housing and a college endowment fund. In addition, Project Amigo provides health and dental services, as well as seed funds for community projects.

Community Development

Fundación Internacional de la Comunidad Tijuana, BC, Mexico

In an effort to expand the level of Mexican philanthropy in Baja California, the International Community Foundation established the Fundación Internacional de la Comunidad (FIC) in 2001 to serve as our Foundation’s sister organization in Tijuana. Now ten years old, FIC has emerged as one of the leading community foundations in Mexico providing hundreds of scholarships and educational opportunities to Tijuana youth annually, promoting the institutional strengthening and training to Baja California’s independent sector, investing in grassroots organizations as well as community-based productive employment opportunities and spurring volunteerism and philanthropy among Baja California’s key civic leaders. Today, our Foundation and FIC continue to actively work together to promote expanded cross-border philanthropy in the San Diego-Baja California border region.

U.S. Retirement in Mexico

With a growing number of Americans now retiring in Mexico, there is a need to better respond to the growing needs of this fast-growing expatriate population. Through its “U.S. Retirement in Mexico” research series, the International Community Foundation seeks to inform, educate and engage would-be retirees, targeted buyers, real estate developers, nonprofit organizations and policymakers at the local, state and federal levels of government in both the United States and Mexico. The research series covers environmental sustainability, financial and environmental transparency and responsibilities for stewardship related to coastal tourism/residential developments, with an emphasis on age 50 and over population from the United States seeking to retire in Mexico.

Border Health:

Binational Tuberculosis Impacts: With funding from the California Wellness Foundation, the International Community Foundation partnered with the UC San Diego School of Medicine, San Diego State University’s School of Public Health, the Universidad Autónoma de Baja California (UABC) Facultad de Medicina y Psicología, County of San Diego Health & Human Services agency, Public Health Services and Baja California’s Secretariat of Health to jointly publish “Tuberculosis in the San Diego-Tijuana Border Region: Time for Bi-National Community-Based Solutions.” To provide ongoing, community-based leadership on the TB issue, the Foundation also established the TB Fund for the Californias whose goal is to expand charitable giving to support cross-border collaboration in the area of TB prevention & control in the San Diego-Baja California border region.
